MOTION FOR INQUIRY INTO WALSH'S FINANCIAL CONDITION AND
TERMINATION OF APPOINTED
COUNSEL BASED ON ALLEGED FINANCIAL HARDSHIP

TO THE FAMILY COURT:

I, STEPHEN GRANT RUSSELL, respectfully state that:

I submit this Motion pro se, to provide notice of multiple inconsistencies in Tara Walsh's representations regarding her financial condition and income.

As the Court is aware, the Court appointed counsel for Ms. Walsh based on her representations that she is financially unable to afford counsel. However, Ms. Walsh has made multiple false and inconsistent representations to this Court regarding her financial condition and childcare and living costs. Ms. Walsh comes from an extremely wealthy family. Her father made millions working with Michael Milken at Drexel Burnham in the 80s and the family lives in an enormous house—approximately 4600 square feet, 6 bedrooms, 4.5 bathrooms, 6 acres of property, inground pool, separate structures from the main house such as a pool house and carriage house and a remote controlled iron gate at the foot of a quarter-mile long driveway—in one of the most affluent neighborhoods in the country.

Section 262 of the New York Family Court Act provides that a party in a family court proceeding has “the right to have counsel assigned by the court in any case where he or she is financially unable to obtain the same.” N.Y. Fam. Ct. Act § 262. However, one who claims financial hardship cannot simply claim so without inquiry into their true financial condition. See e.g., Carney v Carney, 54 Misc 3d 411, 417 [Sup Ct 2016], order vacated, appeal dismissed, 160

AD3d 230 [4th Dept 2018], and order revd, appeal dismissed, 160 AD3d 218 [4th Dept 2018] (“[T]he Legislature, adopted the “unable to retain counsel” standard to assure representation at public expense to those in real need, but not extend that precious right to litigants who, by choice, intentionally limit their income to avail themselves of publicly financed legal services...[I]t would seem that no conclusion regarding an inability to retain counsel could be drawn without evidence of cost and availability of ‘retaining counsel.’”).

Moreover, I have been ordered to expend tremendous sums of money throughout this proceeding, while Ms. Walsh has intentionally protracted this action by, among other things, repeatedly obstructing visitation with my daughter and submitting verifiably false statements under penalty of perjury to obtain baseless orders of protection against me, all the while claiming that she is both financially unable to afford counsel and that she is receiving income from her two “highly successful” companies. Ms. Walsh has also made verifiably false statements that she pays rent and certain childcare and living costs to care for Evie—although her own parents testified under penalty of perjury that Ms. Walsh is indeed living with them rent-free at their estate in Chappaqua and they are caring for Evie without any payment from Ms. Walsh.

I respectfully request that the Court remedy the inherent unfairness in allowing Ms. Walsh to benefit from her false misrepresentations to this Court and her attempts to protract these proceedings and obstruct your Visitation Orders so that she can drain my resources while she expends none. I request that the Court make inquiry into the truth of Ms. Walsh’s financial condition and sanction Ms. Walsh for her repeated false misrepresentations to this Court.

A. Ms. Walsh Has Made False and Inconsistent Representations Regarding Her Income Making Clear that Ms. Walsh is Not the Type of “Indigent” Party New York Family Court Act § 262 is Meant to Serve.

Ms. Walsh has made conclusory representations regarding financial hardship, while simultaneously confirming that she has significant income from her two “highly successful” businesses.

During a hearing before this Court on December 18, 2019, Ms. Walsh stated:

I have two businesses, my handbag business and my marketing consulting business, both of which I’ve been -- at the time, I have more clients now, but during this time period, I was working really hard to build this business back up to where it was before I had my daughter.

I work primarily from home. I have for probably like six years I've been working for myself and I've always worked out of my homes. I do go into the city to meet with clients like one or two times a week because I have to meet with my clients or do different projects for them.

“[A]t one time I had two employees, and they also worked out of my home.”

See Exhibit A, a true and correct copy of pertinent excerpts of the transcript from the December 18, 2019 hearing, at p. 19 (pertinent portions highlighted).

Tellingly, in a Motion in a San Francisco civil proceeding submitted by Ms. Walsh, she stated that: “WALSH grew up in one of the wealthiest suburbs in the country and ran two highly successful businesses before Russell entered her life.” See Exhibit B, Motion submitted and signed by Tara Walsh in the San Francisco Superior Court at p. 4.

Thus, Tara claims that she has “buil[t] her business back up to where it was before [she] had [her] daughter”—which are admittedly now “highly successful.”

Further, in a recent hearing before this Court on June 1, 2021, Ms. Walsh stated:

I go into the city like three days a week now. It depends. I've been working. I have a variety of different clients in the city. One of those clients has asked that I go into their office regularly every week. And then I'm gradually - before ai was going to the city, you know, three to five days a week. So I'm working on that to work out of New York in Midtown

I generally start around 9 and I go, you know, depending on the day but even if I'm working from home, I'm in front of my computer. I have my clients calling. I'm doing meetings. I'm not like, just because - when I do work from home it's not like - I don't have a normal job. You know, I'm accountable. I have to be working all day.

See Exhibit C, a true and correct copy of excerpts of the June 1, 2021 transcripts before this Court at p. 9-10 (pertinent portions highlighted).

Ms. Walsh clearly admits that she runs and receives income from two “highly successful businesses.” As such, Ms. Walsh should not be entitled to receive the benefit of appointed counsel from this Court.

B. Ms. Walsh Has Made False and Inconsistent Representations
Regarding Her Childcare and Living Costs

Moreover, Ms. Walsh has made verifiably false statements regarding her living and child-care costs. Ms. Walsh falsely claims that she pays her mother for babysitting costs.

In a September 16, 2019 hearing before this Court, Ms. Walsh stated:

Ms. Walsh: I pay for babysitting with the [child support] cash...so when I pay for a large chunk of the babysitting, I take out cash and get it to the babysitter, either my mom or Christina...I talked to my accountant the other day about doing that for my mom to put her on payroll because she wants to be able to collect Social Security, so she needs to establish that she’s worked. So my accountant said it wouldn’t be a problem to put my mom on payroll...

The Court: You know what, the question is if she’s being paid...then it’s childcare for which there is payment.

See Exhibit D, transcript from September 16, 2019 hearing at p. 125-129 (pertinent sections highlighted).

Ms. Walsh represented to the Court that she pays her mother for childcare costs. However, Tara’s father, Stephen Walsh confirmed in his deposition testimony under penalty of perjury that Tara does not pay them for rent or living expenses. See Exhibit E.

On April 26, 2021, Ms. Walsh’s father, Stephen Walsh testified under penalty of perjury:

Counsel: Okay. You mentioned that Tara Walsh and your granddaughter, Evie are living with you. How long have they been living there?

Mr. Walsh: Since, roughly, June of 2018—no, since June of 2018, not roughly—early June. I don’t know the exact date. But...

Counsel: And from June of 2018, they lived with you consistently?

Mr. Walsh: That is correct.

Counsel: Does Tara pay you any rent?

Mr. Walsh: She does not.

Counsel: Does she help with any house expenses such as groceries?

Mr. Walsh: She buys her own groceries

See Exhibit E, at p. 28 (pertinent portions highlighted).

Further still, Ms. Walsh falsely represented to this Court that she is living in her parent’s attic without heat. However, her mother Maura Walsh testified under penalty of perjury:

Mrs. Walsh: To—I’m going to—I’m responding to Tara living in the—in the attic with no hear. That’s ridiculous. I have no == no comment on that.

Counsel: Is that true or false?

Mrs. Walsh: Absolutely false.

Counsel: So she’s not living in the attic?

Mrs. Walsh: Absolutely not.

Counsel: And she’s not living without heat?

Mrs. Walsh: Absolutely not.

See Exhibit F at p. 134 (pertinent portions highlighted).

These examples are only a small sampling of Ms. Walsh repeated pattern of making false representations to this Court. Accordingly, the Court should not take Ms. Walsh’s conclusory statements as to financial hardship without inquiry into their truth.

C. Under New York Law, The Court Should Inquire Into the Truth of Ms’ Walsh’s Financial Condition, Withdraw Her Appointed Counsel and Sanction Ms. Walsh

Section 262 of the New York Family Court Act provides that a party in a family court proceeding has “the right to have counsel assigned by the court in any case where he or she is financially unable to obtain the same.” N.Y. Fam. Ct. Act § 262.

New York Courts make clear that it is the “court’s duty to see that public funds allotted for indigent litigants are appropriately utilized.” Patricia R. v Peter W., 126 Misc 2d 87, 89 [Fam Ct 1984]. Section 262 was not “designed to alleviate the financial obligations of those able to hire counsel.” Id.; see also e.g., Carney v Carney, 54 Misc 3d 411, 417 [Sup Ct 2016], order vacated, appeal dismissed, 160 AD3d 230 [4th Dept 2018], and order revd, appeal dismissed, 160 AD3d 218 [4th Dept 2018] (“[T]he Legislature, adopted the “unable to retain counsel” standard to assure representation at public expense to those in real need, but not extend that precious right to litigants who, by choice, intentionally limit their income to avail themselves of publicly financed legal services...[I]t would seem that no conclusion regarding an inability to retain counsel could be drawn without evidence of cost and availability of ‘retaining counsel.’”).

“To permit the depletion of available funds by those who are able to pay will cause hardship to those legitimately entitled to free counsel and to the public who ultimately must bear the cost [s].” Patricia R. v Peter W., 126 Misc 2d 87, 89 [Fam Ct 1984] (holding that “Respondent is liable for that portion of Petitioner's counsel fee which he is able to pay, notwithstanding that the attorney was assigned rather than privately retained.”) (citing Matter of Cheri H., 121 Misc.2d 973, 469 N.Y.S.2d 551 (Fam. Ct. Bronx Co. 1983)).

In Pugh v. Pugh (2 Dept. 2015) 125 A.D.3d 663, 2 N.Y.S.3d 608, the court held that given the mother's statements indicating that she lacked the funds to retain private counsel, the Family Court should have inquired further into the mother's financial circumstances, including, but not limited to, inquiring about her expenses, to determine whether she was eligible for assigned counsel, in proceeding at which father petitioned to modify judgment of divorce so as to permit him to relocate with the parties' children, and mother petitioned to modify the judgment so as to grant her custody of the children.

In, Moiseeva v. Sichkin, the court held that the father was not deprived of his statutory right to the assistance of counsel as a result of Family Court's decision not to appoint counsel to represent him in custody proceeding where Family Court properly inquired as to father's eligibility for court-appointed counsel and, after mother presented a document undermining father's claim of indigency, instructed father to submit certain documentation to the court so the court could determine the father's financial eligibility for a court-appointed attorney, but father failed to fully and timely make the disclosure necessary to support his claim of indigency. (2 Dept. 2015) 129

A.D.3d 974, 13 N.Y.S.3d 123; see also e.g., Iadicicco ex rel. Watkins v. Iadicicco (3 Dept. 2000) 270 A.D.2d 721, 704 N.Y.S.2d 377 (refusal to adjourn scheduled hearing on child's petition to terminate father's visitation until father could obtain assigned counsel was not abuse of discretion, where Family Court repeatedly urged father to file the required financial affidavit to determine his eligibility for assignment of counsel and he failed to do so); Alphonse v. Alphonse (N.Y.A.D. 2 Dept. 2020) 189 A.D.3d 1028, 136 N.Y.S.3d 322 (affirming court's denial of appointed counsel where court properly inquired as to father's financial eligibility for court-appointed counsel and instructed father to submit a form that detailed his financial circumstances, father listed his weekly income as $1,820, he failed to indicate whether he provided financial support to any other individuals, or any of his expenses, aside from his monthly mortgage payments, and, as a result, father failed to fully and timely make the disclosures necessary to support his claim of indigency).

Further, in Carney, the court held that in evaluating father's financial ability to retain counsel, for purposes of deciding whether he was entitled to appointed counsel pursuant to provisions of the Family Court Act in child custody and civil contempt proceeding, court could not turn blind eye to his economic potential, especially where there was no prima facie evidence of indigence, such as qualification for public assistance, Medicaid, Social Security Income (SSI), or other income and asset based government assistance programs. See Carney, supra, 4 Misc 3d at 417. The Carney court held that, “[t]he applicant will also have the burden of proof to show by the preponderance of evidence that it would impractical and unjust to impute income to him equivalent to an income commensurate with his skills and education, and furthermore that he has engaged in a diligent search for employment. The court assigns these burdens to the applicant because he seeks a government benefit and should be required to establish a prima facie case of entitlement based on facts established at the hearing.” Id. at 434-35.

Here, it is clear that Ms. Walsh only offers conclusory and false representations regarding her alleged inability to afford counsel. Under New York law, the Court should inquire into the truth of Ms. Walsh's claimed financial hardship and remedy the undue prejudice and inherent unfairness from forcing me to be the sole party incurring costs in this proceeding. Ms. Walsh's current ability to unjustly protract this proceeding has empowered her to obstruct visitation with my daughter and file verifiably false statements in support of requests for orders of protection against me without having to expend any costs for such bad faith conduct.

D. CONCLUSION

Ms. Walsh clearly admits in court statements that she receives income from two “highly successful businesses” and has repeatedly made false and inconsistent statements to this Court. As such, Ms. Walsh should not be entitled to receive the benefit of appointed counsel.

I respectfully request that the Court remedy the inherent unfairness in allowing Ms. Walsh to benefit from her false misrepresentations to this Court and her attempts to protract these proceedings and obstruct the Court’s Visitation Orders so that she can drain my resources while she expends none. I request that the Court make inquiry into the truth of Ms. Walsh’s financial condition and sanction Ms. Walsh for her repeated false misrepresentations to this Court.

WHEREFORE, Petitioner, Stephen Grant Russell, respectfully requests the following relief:

- a. The Court make inquiry into Tara Walsh’s financial condition and Order that Ms. Walsh must provide sufficient evidence to warrant appointed counsel;
- b. That the Court withdraw Tara Walsh’s appointed counsel upon a finding of insufficient financial hardship based on Ms. Walsh’s court statements;
- c. That the Court sanction Tara Walsh for her repeated false representations and Order Ms. Walsh to pay the costs of appointed counsel that were improperly paid for by the State based on her misrepresentations;
- d. And for such relief that the Court deems just and proper.

1 these are all babysitting, is that correct?

2 A. Yes.

3 Q. And when you have hours, what does hours represent?

4 A. The number of hours that I worked. And it's $20 an
5 hour, so given the number of hours, times 20 is the total
6 amount paid. And when I wrote checks, I had the check number,
7 and when I paid in cash, I provided receipts. And all of that
8 is noted and provided in the exhibits.

9 THE COURT: Will it be fair to say this is for a
10 10-month period?

11 MS. WALSH: Yeah. Yeah.

12 MR. EDDY: Roughly a 10-month period?

13 MS. WALSH: Yeah.

14 Q. And what -- what per hour was being paid here?

15 A. $20 an hour. This is -- I -- this is my first child,
16 so we were paying --

17 MR. ADVOCATE: Asked and -- asked and answered.

18 MS. WALSH: But --

19 Q. How did you derive the $20 an hour amount?

20 A. Well, the nanny in San Francisco was making like $30
21 or more an hour, so I thought that $20 was reasonable. I've 22 also looked on care.com for babysitters, and I found that the 23 level of qualifications of someone that I would use would be
24 around $20. So --

25 Q. And the total amount paid, these represent either

1 cash or checks, is that correct?

2 A. Yes.

3 MR. ADVOCATE: Objection, leading.

4 THE COURT: Sustained.

5 Q. And P -- P1-2 -- excuse me, P9-2 is receipts, is that
6 correct?

7 A. Yes.

8 Q. And P -- P3 is checks, is that correct?

9 A. Yeah. Yes.

10 Q. Now, when you issued checks, those checks are listed
11 under check number, is that correct?

12 A. Yes.

13 Q. And the notes, sometimes you put under -- under 14 notes, what did you put under notes here?

15 A. If they were cashed with -- I didn't put on all of 16 them whether they were checks. Yeah, it's not terribly
17 consistent, but basically where there's a check number, it was 18 a check and other than that, it was cash.

19 Q. And you provided receipts, is that correct?

20 A. Yes.

21 Q. Why did you need babysitting care?

22 A. Because I work. I have two businesses, my handbag
23 business and my marketing consulting business, both of which 24 I've been -- at the time, I have more clients now, but during 25 this time period, I was working really hard to build the

1 business back up to where it was before I had my daughter.

2 Q. You testified as to this business previously in 3 previous sessions here. Where do you work from?

4 A. I work primarily from my home. I have for probably
5 like six years I've been working for myself and I've always
6 worked out of my homes. I do go into the city like one or two
7 times a week because I have to meet with my clients or do
8 different projects for them. Like, I was just out all day last
9 week because I had to photograph a space that my client
10 constructed, so --

11 Q. You just indicated that even before Evie was born,
12 that you actually did use to work out of your home. Is that
13 correct?

14 A. Yeah, and at one time I had two employees, and they
15 also worked out of my home, so --

16 Q. Currently, where do you live?

17 A. At my parents' house.

18 Q. And that's being required by court order, correct?

19 A. Yes, because Mr. Russell requested it.

20 Q. So going through roughly how many hours -- can you
21 take a look at your summary and give the Court an approximate
22 number of hours, say, back in September of 2018, number of 23 hours of babysitting that you required?

24 MR. ADVOCATE: Objection, the document is not in 25 evidence.

1 continuation to appear -- I am adjusting the temporary
2 order to 4,200 a month child support, 1,000 a month for
3 childcare through Support Collection Unit effective
4 January 1, 2020, and the date for continuation of hearing
5 will be --

6 COURT CLERK: April 22 at 9:00 a.m.

7 THE COURT: And I want everybody here. And that
8 includes you, Mr. Russell. Okay? Thank you so much,
9 thank you, sir, have a good holiday. Thank you, counsel.

10 MR. EDDY: What's the date?

11 MR. ADVOCATE: April 22.

12 COURT OFFICER: Parties, please step out.

13 MR. DIFABIO: Thank you, Your Honor.

DOCUMENTS & ARGUMENTS FROM

CUSTODY & CHILD SUPPORT
PROCEEDINGS IN NEW YORK

Action Filed: September 26, 2018
Trial Date: June 7, 2021

1 WALSH's character as a mother, it will be giving him the opportunity to plead his custody case before
2 this court, rather than address the extremely serious allegations against WALSH for drugging.

3 B. RUSSELL IS ATTEMPTING TO USE SUBMISSIONS TO FAMILY COURT
4 CUSTODY PROCEEDINGS TO MAKE MONEY A MOTIVE OF WALSH

5 RUSSELL has already gone the route of complaining that WALSH had his financial
6 documentation accounting for his income that was used in family court child support hearings. He uses
7 emails where WALSH sent documents to herself about RUSSELL'S financials. RUSSELL has 8 attempted to use this of evidence WALSH was intending to "de-fraud" him. Assumably, he will
9 attempted to use this as a motive for WALSH "drugging" him. WALSH allegedly defrauding
10 RUSSELL has nothing to do with his claims of being drugged for years, especially given he has never 11 introduced any evidence of WALSH stealing anything from him. WALSH grew up in one of the 12 wealthiest suburbs in the country and ran two highly successful businesses before RUSSELL entered 13 her life. WALSH had a legal right to ask RUSSELL to assist in financially supporting their daughter, 14 particularly given he contributes nothing towards his daughters care otherwise. WALSH asking for 15 child support is not a motive for "drugging" him.
16

17 III. CONCLUSION

18 For the foregoing reasons, WALSH respectfully asks that this Court order precluding RUSSELL
19 from offering any testimony, documents or other evidence from the Family Court custody and

Exhibit C

1 you know we're going to have to -- you know, that'll
2 obviously affect my schedule.

3 THE COURT: Right, and it is difficult when
4 you're dealing with a three-hour time difference. Ms.
5 Walsh, do you have a regular work schedule?

6 MS. WALSH: Yeah, I do, and Evie does, too. You
7 know, she's being potty-trained now. She has swim classes
8 coming up. She has different art classes in the summer.
9 She's starting nursery school in September which is going
10 to be five days a week.

11 I can tell you that, you know, when I have spoken
12 with Linda Russell (ph) she has -- the last time she 13 visited Evie was on a weekend. I do think she's available
14 on the weekends. I think it's -- she doesn't work. She's 15 retired. And she's spoken to me about coming on the 16 weekends before including this prior weekend that she 17 wanted to come. So I think it's -- it's a little 18 unreasonable to say she can't come any weekends. It's 19 very, very hard for me to like rearrange my entire schedule
20 during the week. I go into the city all the time. I have
21 different meetings. It's -- it's very hard for me to do
22 three days in a row during the work day. I mean, I would
23 be jeopardizing my business and income if I did that.

24 THE COURT: When do you go into the city?

25 MS. WALSH: I go into the city like three days a

1 week now. It depends. I've been working. I have a
2 variety of different clients in the city. One of those
3 clients has asked that I go into their office regularly
4 every week. And then I'm gradually -- before I was going
5 to the city, you know, three to five days a week, so I'm
6 working on that to work out of New York again in Midtown.

7 THE COURT: What time do you start?

8 MS. WALSH: I generally start around 9 and I go,
9 you know, depending on the day but even if I'm working from 10 home, I'm in front of my computer. I have my clients
11 calling. I'm doing meetings. I'm not like, just because 12 -- when I do work from home it's not like -- I don't have a 13 normal job. You know, I'm accountable. I have to be 14 working all day.

15 THE COURT: So maybe we could do a one day a week
16 where you could just transfer Evie to Ms. Russell before
17 you go to work and she can just keep her that day so your 18 parents don't have to deal with the transfer.

19 MS. WALSH: For the entire? Okay.

20 THE COURT: Yeah, I mean, there's -- there's 21 endless possibilities as to how this can be arranged, and 22 really the bottom line here is, if you don't agree, I'm 23 going to just make up a schedule that sounds fair to me and 24 it will probably inconvenience one or maybe all of you. It
25 will be a court order, and the only way you will be able to

1 MR. DIFABIO: Okay, thank you (inaudible).

2 MS. JACKMAN: That's fine.

3 THE COURT: Ms. Jackman, are you in agreement
4 with this interim order?

5 MS. JACKMAN: Yes, Judge, I am.

6 MR. RUSSELL: I'd like to see a written order.

7 THE COURT: Okay. All right. So someone will
8 submit a written order and I'll sign off on it. Thank you.

9 MR. RUSSELL: Thank you.

10 MR. WEDDLE: Thank you, Judge.

11 THE COURT: Bye.

1 questions --

2 MR. ADVOCATE: I'm going to follow-up to that
3 one --

4 THE COURT: -- (inaudible) for payment.

5 Q. I'll use your counsel's suggestion that we include
6 cash in there as well, right, but I'd like to ask you,
7 Ms. Walsh, what kind of things do you buy for the baby in cash?

8 A. I pay for the babysitting with the cash. The cash --
9 the child support goes into a Bank of America account. I sent 10 the paperwork for it to be wired into my bank account. For 11 some reason, it hasn't been successful. I've tried to called.
12 It's just something that I've accepted. So the money goes into 13 the Bank of America, you know, child support account. I can't 14 get checks for that account to my knowledge, so when I pay for 15 a large chunk of the babysitting, I take out cash and get it to 16 the babysitter, either my mom or Christina.

17 Q. Well, Ms. Walsh, first let me ask, is there anything
18 that you usually pay usually, during the normal and ordinary
19 course of your life that you pay for the baby in cash other
20 than the babysitter?

21 A. I don't typically use cash. It's not -- I mean, I
22 primarily use cards to pay, but I do use cash at times. Yeah.

23 Q. Welcome to the twenty-first century, right.

24 So with respect to the babysitting that you say you
25 pay in cash, are you reporting her? Do you pay taxes on her?

1 A. I don't know.

2 Q. Is she on the book?

3 MR. EDDY: Note my objection.

4 THE COURT: I'll sustain the objection.

5 MR. ADVOCATE: Your Honor, I do feel that the 6 question of whether someone is being paid on the books is 7 a relevant issue for childcare.

8 THE COURT: I think --

9 THE WITNESS: That's actually --

10 MR. EDDY: Stop.

11 THE WITNESS: It's a good question because I
12 talked to my accountant the other day about doing that for 13 my mom to put her on payroll because she wants to be able 14 to collect Social Security, so she needs to establish that 15 she's worked. So my accountant said it wouldn't be a
16 problem to put my mom on payroll, so she has a record of 17 working. But I guess that's something that I'm going to 18 be doing moving forward.

19 Q. Why not put Christina on?

20 A. I could put Christina on too.

21 Q. But you haven't?

22 MR. EDDY: Note my objection.

23 THE COURT: Well, the witness has already
24 answered. Felt that the question was okay, and she said
25 that she is planning to do so.

1 MR. ADVOCATE: And I just want to be clear on it
2 that she hasn't don't it yet, is that -- can I get that
3 question --

4 MR. EDDY: Well, she has to --

5 MR. ADVOCATE: That she's evaded that question
6 just a little bit. She has been -- she's been paying 7 someone, and I just want it on the record whether the 8 person is so far on the books or not.

9 THE WITNESS: I have an accountant. He sees all
10 of my accounts. We go through all of the transactions
11 that I've done. I tell him I don't micromanage what he 12 does. I trust him, so I'll follow up with him. I assume 13 he's doing the taxes now. He's probably including
14 something because he asked if my daughter was a dependent,
15 so. I can let you know after I talk to him.

16 Q. The question of whether your daughter is a dependent,
17 you understand that has nothing to do with whether or not you
18 report the income being pad to the --

19 THE COURT: I think her answer --

20 MR. EDDY: She still doesn't have to report it
21 at this point.

22 THE COURT: -- was that she hasn't and that she
23 plans to, and please move on.

24 MR. EDDY: Judge Kimba Wood did the same thing.

25 MR. ADVOCATE: And she got into a lot of trouble

1 for it by the way, just so you're clear.

2 THE COURT: Do we need to take a break because
3 that's unacceptable that exchange. So if we need to have
4 that, we can step out or we can continue --

5 MR. EDDY: My apologies, Your Honor.

6 MR. ADVOCATE: We'll move on, Your Honor.

7 Q. So let me ask you a few questions about the childcare
8 that your mother is providing. Your mother until recently has 9 not been working at a paid job, right?

10 A. She's worked paid jobs.

11 Q. When was that last time she worked a paid job?

12 A. Um, she, uh, doesn't -- I don't think she gets paid,
13 but she volunteers, she teaches nursery school kids out of the 14 Greenwich Audubon and she also volunteers at the Greenwich
15 Audubon

16 Q. And I understand about the volunteer stuff. I'm 17 asking when was the last time that she worked?

18 MR. EDDY: Are you talking about paid work?

19 MR. ADVOCATE: Yes, paid work.

20 MR. EDDY: Okay.

21 A. She did visiting nurse -- nurse services.

22 Q. Wasn't that more than twenty years ago?

23 A. I don't know exactly how long it was, but.

24 Q. Was it more than that maybe?

25 A. She has six kids. She's been raising six kids. She

1 needs to work now. She wants to work. She wants to get
2 income. My two youngest sisters are, you know, juniors,
3 sophomores, and seniors in high school, so I don't -- yeah.

4 Q. Your father was --

5 MR. EDDY: Your Honor, what are we --

6 MR. ADVOCATE: Your Honor, she just opened the 7 door. She said my mother needs to work, that's why I'm
8 paying her. This is absolutely untrue.

9 MR. EDDY: Whether she needs to work or does
10 work, I mean --

11 THE COURT: Sustained.

12 MR. EDDY: -- babysitters need to be paid --

13 MR. ADVOCATE: No.

14 MR. EDDY: -- and that's pretty well
15 established.

16 THE COURT: You know what, the question is is 17 she being paid, and I didn't see any receipts come in on 18 your case, but at this point, if she's being paid, then
19 it's childcare for which there is payment. I haven't --

20 MR. ADVOCATE: Well, I'm going to take -- I'm 21 going to --

22 MR. EDDY: Your Honor --

23 THE COURT: -- decided that yet, but I'm going
24 to not allow questioning regarding income that her parents
25 have. I'm not. And I made that ruling already and I'm
